A letter from the Editor

Welcome to the Spring 2022 issue of "As Above, So Below" magazine. The theme of this latest edition of demo is "Spirit," and I cannot think of a more apt word to associate with this remarkable publication.

It is indeed a spirit of energy, curiosity and passion for the transformative power of music that demo captures so well. Whether you are a long-time friend or a first-time reader, welcome.

During the dark and difficult days of the past year, as we have been separated from one another both by public decree and out of concern for each other's safety, music has continued to unite our spirits, just as it always has. But beyond that, music has become our coping mechanism, our emotional salve, and an ever-present reminder of happier days spent together.

Brinn Ohmeti

Music inspires - there's that word again - artistry and innovation in many forms. If you need proof, you need look no further than this edition of demo. It has been produced through the creative efforts of student journalists, photographers, artists, editors and others who have enriched this publication with their remarkable gifts. I am deeply grateful to all of them.

By the time the next issue of demo is published, here's hoping we will all be able to gather in person to celebrate its release. In the meantime, I sincerely hope this Spring 2021 issue of demo lifts your spirit, for that is what music does better than anything else I can think of.
